Design Division News

Al Boyarsky, Chairman of the Architectural Association, London, widely credited as the best school of architecture in the world, was the guest of the MCA Design Division, Friday, November 8, as the result of a spontaneous invitation by David Dobereiner.

Mr. Boyarsky was in this country to open the Architectural Association 125 exhibit at Harvard's Graduate School of Design.

He discussed various issues in Design education with our students, complimented the Division for the lively spirit of dedication he sensed, and expressed his envy of the studio space in the Fullerton Building. At the invitation of the Architectural Design Department, Duane Huntington of Biospheres gave a multi-media presentation in the Fullerton Building, Monday, November 11. Based upon his association with the "Street Farmers" in London, this young architect's presentation dramatizes the transformation of urban life which would be made possible by the development of alternate technologies under the direct control of lay people.
